
The War on Terror is lasting and ever-present unlike previous wars such as the Civil War or Vietnam War. Through technology, terrorists are accessible to many forms of terrorism that create greater fear in the world. Three distinct points help deter terrorism, according to the author. Redesigning Homeland Security to focus less on airport security and more on bridges, buildings, and ports. “The War of Ideas” presents greater knowledge of our adversaries instead of seeking only an American agenda. The third agenda includes eliminating the threat of nuclear destruction.
